MANY MILLS HANGS IN BALANCE

Shortage Threatens to Close Plants in Lumber Region

Portland, Ore., March 28. Despite recent reassuring statements of railroad traffic men, the lumber industry of western Oregon and western Washington is facing a serious predicament because of car shortages.

Almost every district in the territory west of the Cascades reports being affected by the shortage. The situation seems worst around Puget Sound and Grays Harbor.

Until a few days ago the mills along the Southern Pacific in the Willamette River Valley were getting fairly good car service, but they are found to be suffering now in common with the others.

The survey of the situation by the West Coast Lumbermen's Association reveals that several important plants will be forced to close.
